Sophie Evans is doing Tonypandy and the Rhondda valleys very proud at the moment as she fights for her place to be Dorothy on the West End stage and wear those ruby red slippers. Last week she avoided the two dreaded sing offs when she sang her version of 'I enjoy being a girl' which was a show tune from the Rodgers and Hammerstein 1959 musical 'Flower Drum Song'. She had mixed comments from the panel and Sir Andrew Lloyd Webber; however she won over the publics vote and is now through to the Semi-Final which will be broadcast live on Saturday night at 19:10 on BBC 1. This is a big week for Sophie as it will determine whether she has a place in the final on Saturday May 22nd. Sophie really needs your support this week and I am sure that Tonypandy and the rest of the Rhondda will get behind her and see her through to the final. This week votes are more important than anything so please could you all pick up the phone on Saturday night and VOTE FOR SOPHIE and tell everyone you know to do the same. Let's get our Rhondda girl those ruby red slippers!
